IBM MentorPlace: Student Quick Tips

<http://ibm.mentorplace.epals.org>

---

Who?

You and your IBM mentor – with the help of your teacher.

What?

Using a school computer, you will write and send messages to your IBM mentor. Using a work computer, your IBM mentor will write and send messages back to you.

You and your mentor will work together on fun activities.

When you and your mentor write to each other, it is just like having a conversation. If you ask questions such as: “What sports do you like?” or “What hobbies do you have?”, your mentor will answer you – and might ask you questions too. Remember to answer them!

When?

You and your mentor will write to each other every week.

Mentors are people too! Sometimes they get busy. If you have not received a message from your IBM mentor during the week, just tell your teacher right away, and your teacher will fix the situation.

Where?

You should write to your mentor only from school.

Do not give your home address or phone number to your IBM mentor – or to anyone you meet online.

Why?

You get to talk to a person who works at IBM and is interested in learning more about you.

You get to learn new things.

Most important, you get to have fun!

If you have any questions, please ask your teacher.
